The new three manual and pedal pipe organ at Grace Episcopal Church is an electric-slider action instrument of 44 Resisters and 60 Ranks. Some of the pipes are new, and some pipes are heritage ranks retained from the church’s previous Johnson instrument. That organ from the 1800s was a mechanical action instrument which had been significantly modified over the years, including the later addition of an electro-pneumatic action Antiphonal Division placed in the church’s rear balcony.

The right-side of the Sanctuary’s main organ case was structurally reinforced, with all new wind-chests and expression boxes fitted within. The new electric console is positioned at the opposite side of the Sanctuary from the organ case, so the organist hears direct tonal projection and balance (the former console was on the same side of the Sanctuary as the organ case, beneath its cantilevered façade, such that the organist had no direct hearing and perception of organ tone or balance). All finishes are white and mahogany to match the building’s historic architecture. Pipe shades and some façade pipes are painted in historic colors to compliment the church’s stained glass windows.
